

DANIELLE BAYARD JACKSON

Danielle Bayard Jackson is a friendship coach and educator who leverages her background as a high school teacher to now share the latest research on women's communications, women's cooperation, and women's conflict. She's become a leading voice in the conversation around relational health and a go-to media expert, having been featured in outlets like the New York Times, Oprah magazine, and CBS News. She shares research about connection on her social media, provides personal coaching sessions, and travels across the country speaking about the power of female friendship. Her podcast, Friend Forward, is a top-ranking show on Apple Podcasts, and a powerful resource for women looking to improve their platonic relationships. Her book, "Fighting For Our Friendships" will be released in May 2024.
